GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

Education Department.

Education.

No. 660 T.—Edn., dated Darjeeling, the 19th June 1930.

From—A. J. DASH, Esq., I.C.S., Secretary to the Government of Bengal,

To—The Director of Public Instruction, Bengal.

Minister-in-charge: The Hon'ble Mr. K. Nazimuddin, C. I. E.

I am directed to address you on the subject of discipline in educational institutions in the province in continuation of Government orders Nos. 1258-Edn., dated the 27th March 1930, and 411-T—Edn., dated the 19th May 1930.

The Government of Bengal (Ministry of Education) attach great importance to the maintenance of a strong influence over their students by teaching staffs and I am to request you to draw the attention of governing bodies, managing committees and the teaching staff of all institutions to the need for teachers to consolidate their influence by all means in their power and to lose no opportunity of organising and taking part in activities which may interest students or occupy their attention. It is, for example, very important that teachers should take part in the organisation of games, the boy scout movement, historical and scientific excursions, debating societies and in the publication of school or college magazines. It should be further made clear that these efforts of teachers should not be confined solely to teaching hours but are expected to extend to activities of students taking place at other times. It should also be pointed out to Government servants that, at the time of making promotion or granting permission to officers to cross efficiency bars, the share taken by officers in such activities and their success in influencing students will be taken into consideration.

2. At the same time, even where the influence of teachers over students is all that can be desired, outside influence may at times cause breaches of discipline. For such cases the following directions are issued, and I am to request that appropriate portions of the same be communicated to governing bodies, managing committees, the staffs of colleges and schools and the inspecting staff as soon as possible for their guidance.

The use of the buildings and grounds of Government or aided institutions for political meetings or demonstrations of any kind.—Such use is forbidden.

Conduct of Government servants.—If a Government servant takes part in any anti-Government propaganda immediate action should be taken by the head of his or her institution to report the facts to the Divisional Inspector or Inspectress for disciplinary action.

The attention of teachers who are Government servants should be drawn to Rule 22 of the Government Servants' Conduct Rules and they should be informed that when occasions arise, Government servants should correct misapprehensions or misstatements. No attempt however should be made to deliver special lectures on the policy or activities of Government.

Conduct of teachers in aided institutions.—Attention should be drawn to existing rules regulating the conduct of teachers in aided institutions (paragraphs 11 and 12—pages 62 and 63 of Rules and Orders of the Bengal Education Department).

Grants to aided institutions.—Officers should be warned that before distributing grants they should take particular care to ascertain that, in institutions claiming grants, proper relations between teachers and students are being maintained and proper attempts made to enforce discipline, and that they should withdraw grants where these conditions are absent.

The power to withdraw scholarship rights remains with Government and will be exercised where it appears on the Director of Public Instruction's recommendation that discipline is unsatisfactory. Acts of indiscipline by scholarship holders should be dealt with firmly and should on no account be ignored.

The attention of the authorities of all aided institutions should be drawn to the dependence of payment of grants in aid on the maintenance of satisfactory discipline and satisfactory relations between teachers and students.

Conduct of students at public meetings.—If a student of a Government or aided institution so conducts himself or herself at any public meeting as to bring undesirable notoriety upon the institution in which he or she is reading, or engages in political agitation in such a way as to interfere with the corporate life and educational work of the institution, or indulges in picketing or open violence, such action shall be deemed a breach of discipline and be dealt with by the head of the institution in accordance with the ordinary rules.

Treatment of students who take part in strikes and hartals.—

(1) Disciplinary action should be taken against the ringleaders as well as those who take an active part in picketing. Every effort should be made to ascertain the names of students who, for the purpose of dissuading students from attending school or college, picket their own or other educational institutions.

(2) Students who remain absent from school or college and whose continued absence, after due warning, is, in the opinion of the head of the institution, unjustifiable, should have their names struck off the rolls or be dealt with in such other way as the head of the institution thinks fit.

(3) The initiative in taking such disciplinary action and the award of individual punishment will remain with the head of the institution, but if mass punishment is considered necessary, the matter must be reported to the managing committee or governing body in accordance with Departmental Rules.

(4) It should be recognised that it is undesirable to close an institution, as students who are willing to study are entitled to the best efforts of the authorities to enable them to do so. Government have therefore decided that only in cases where there is a serious danger of violence, should heads of institutions take the responsibility of closing schools or colleges. In such cases an immediate report of the action taken and the reasons for it should be submitted to the Director of Public Instruction through the proper channels.

In all other cases Government and aided schools or colleges should be kept open until orders of the authorities are received.
